PAYMENT ORDER OF ITEMS - (Effective 10/01/2016) The law permits us to pay items (such as checks or drafts) drawn on your account in any order. We use automated systems to process and post transactions. When we process multiple transactions for your account on the same day, you agree that we may at our discretion determine our posting orders for the transactions and that we may credit, authorize, accept, pay, decline or return credits, debits and holds in any order at our option. The order we process items can affect the total amount of overdraft and/or NSF fees you incur.

This section summarizes how we generally post some common transactions to your account. We group different types of transactions into categories. We use several different categories for holds, credits, and debts. Most categories include more than one transaction type. We generally post all transactions with a category, using the posting order that applies to that category, before we post any transactions assigned to the next category.

First we post deposits and other credits to your account. Then we post bank-initiated and cash items such as wires, holds, bank fees, cashed checks drawn on us, withdrawals or transfers made in person, electronic transfers via online or mobile banking, etc. Then we post debit card and ATM transactions. Then we post checks and last we post automated clearing house (ACH) debits. Within all categories, items will be paid in the order we receive them. Within a category if our systems do not receive date and time information, then we will post these items after items with date and time information, in the order of smallest to largest dollar amount.
